CENSUS OF IRELAND

FOR

1861.

TO HIS EXCELLENCY

GEORGE WILLIAM FREDERICK EARL OF CARLISLE, K.G.

LORD LIEUTENANT GENERAL AND GENERAL GOVERNOR OF IRELAND, &c.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY,

We, the Commissioners appointed to take an Account of the Population of Ireland for the night of the 7th of April, 1861, in conformity with the provisions of the Act 23 and 24 Victoria, cap. 62, beg to lay before your Excellency the following Abstracts of the enumeration as prescribed by section 10 of the Act:—

Prior to 1841, the Irish Census Enumerators were persons taken from the general community. In the years 1841 and 1851, the Census was taken partly by the Constabulary and Police, and partly by other Enumerators, under the control of the officers of these forces. On the present occasion (except in the Metropolis), the enumeration has been altogether effected by the officers and men of the Constabulary Force, whose local knowledge rendered them peculiarly well suited for this undertaking, and whose position throughout the country has afforded us a permanent staff of efficient Enumerators, over whom the Government continue to exercise control. Moreover, their experience as Enumerators on two former occasions, and their familiarity with inquiries of this description, acquired by taking the Annual Returns of Agricultural Statistics for the last fourteen years, rendered their services especially valuable in acting as the sole Enumerators for 1861. They are, we have reason to believe, personally acquainted with every house in their respective Districts.

The country was divided into 261 Districts, each under the charge of a Sub-Inspector, who was accountable for the Returns of his District. 5,096 men of the Constabulary, 15 Coast-Guards, and 173 of the Dublin Metropolitan Police were employed as Enumerators,—a force which the present extremely peaceable and crimeless state of the country enabled your Excellency to place at the service of the Census Commission. Printed instructions, with which the Superintendents and Enumerators were previously furnished, made them acquainted with the nature of the duties they had respectively to perform; and when necessary they were supplied with maps, boats, and in the Irish-speaking districts, with Interpreters.

Upon the collection of the various Census papers on and after the 8th of April, each Enumerator was required to fill up an abstract for every Townland, and in cities and large towns for every Street in his district, and to return it to this Office attached to the file of enumeration papers. These Abstracts contain the number and condition of the houses, the number of families, the population by sexes, and their religious denominations.

From the Enumerators' Abstracts the present return has been compiled, it must therefore be regarded only in the light of The Enumerators' Census. It is, as in all other primary returns of this description, but an approximation to the actual results of the enumeration—the precise numbers in which can only be ascertained when the individual forms have been examined in the office and checked in detail.

In consequence of the Enumerators' Abstracts being fuller and more minute on this than on any previous occasion, we have reason to suppose that a greater amount of accuracy is now presented than has been obtained in the first Parliamentary Return of any former Census of Ireland. The circumstance that by these Abstracts we have obtained a double enumeration—one for persons, and the other for the religious persuasion,—while it has caused some delay in furnishing this Report, has afforded a check by which errors were susceptible of correction in the accompanying tables with a precision not heretofore attainable. In order to test the authenticity of these Enumerators' Abstracts, two counties and one city have been examined in detail in the Office, and the results thereof justify our opinion as to the approximate accuracy of the Tables.

The tables appended to this Report show the number of Houses, Families, and Persons, by Sexes, in each County, City, and large Corporate Town in Ireland, with the decennial increase, or decrease at the years 1851 and 1861; and, as directed by the present Census Act, sec. III., the Religious Persuasion in 1861;—together with the details of these subjects for the several Boroughs, and for all Towns of 1,500 Inhabitants and upwards, in this portion of the United Kingdom.

We have to report to your Excellency that we have not experienced any difficulties in taking the Census for the night of the 7th of April, and have not had occasion in any instance to call into action the power granted by the 7th section of the Act. We are not aware of any disturbing cause, such as the temporary migration of labourers, having existed at the date of the Census Enumeration.

In order to afford the means of comparison we have retained the territorial areas adopted on the two last occasions. The only alterations made in the division of the country since 1841 are, the separation of the counties of Cork and Tipperary into Ridings, effected before 1851; and on the present occasion, the separation of the Suburban District of the Metropolis from the County of Dublin, the boundary of which is defined in a note at the foot of this page.*

Table I. exhibits, by sexes and persons, the number and distribution of the population of Ireland as enumerated on and after the 8th of April, 1861, as well as the numbers obtained by the Census of 1841 and 1851, with the decennial increase or decrease of the people in 1861, and between that period and the present.

The total population enumerated on the 8th of April, 1861, as obtained from the Enumerators' Abstracts, amounts to 5,764,543,—the sexes being 2,804,961 males and 2,959,582 females, or 787,842 less than that returned for the 31st of March, 1851,—being a decrease

* Suburban District of Dublin.—The Municipal and Borough Boundaries of the City of Dublin are, for a great portion of their course, coextensive, and are in part defined by the Grand and Royal Canals and the Circular roads. The City has, of late years, spread extensively, especially upon the southern side, beyond the Municipal Boundary, and a large proportion of the population, whose daily occupations are within the City, live in the Suburbs,—which in fact, by continuance of houses, actually forms a portion of the City in the popular, although not in the municipal or parliamentary sense of the word. In the Census of 1841 and 1851 this outlying district of the City was enumerated as portions of the Barones of Castleknock, Coolock, Daluin, Uppercross, and Rathdown, in the County of Dublin. Upon the present occasion we have separated them from the County, and now present them as the Suburban District of the City.

As the Census of the Rural Districts throughout the Provinces has been taken by Townlands, we were, of necessity, obliged to follow the Townland Boundaries of the outlying Districts of the Metropolis, in some of which portions only are covered by houses so dense and numerous as to present the characters of a Town. The Boundary which we have selected commences on the north side beyond Dollymount, where the Townland of Greenlawn meets the coast line, and passing westward is continued on by its margin and that of the Townland of Clontarf East, both in Clontarf Parish; Kilbester South, in the Parish of Kilbester; and Clontarf West, in the Parish of Clontarf; Marine, Richmond, Ballybough, and Drumcondra, in the Parish of Clontarf; and along the western edge of the latter Townland to Drumcondra Bridge, where it passes up the River Tolka to Glensavin Bridge by the Boundary of the Townlands of Clontarf West, Dunsowell or Cross-Guns North, and Drishoge; it turns thence by the outer line of Gosmore, along the Glensavin-road, all in the outlying district of the Parish of St. George's, and following the outer line of the Townlands of Prospect and Cross-Guns, in Glensavin Parish, meets the Municipal Boundary of the City at the 6th Lock on the Royal Canal, above Westacresland Bridge. From this point it proceeds along the Townland Boundaries of Grangegeena Middle, Culmigh, and Grangegeena South, to the Phoenix Park Wall, by which it passes down to the Circular-road Gate (all in the Parish of Grangegeena), where it meets the City and Borough Boundary, with which it is continuous along the Circular-road by the Park Wall, running southward to The Dublin Park Gate, in the Parish of St. James's. Thence extending westward along the Cooryghamroad by the City Boundary to Liffeybank, at a point opposite Island Bridge, it passes along the main road leading to Chapelizod, and by the margin of Longmeadow, in the Parish of St. James's, to nearly opposite the Hibernian School, and then through the centre of the River Liffey close to Chapelizod.

All this Suburban District on the north side of the City covers an extent of 2,150 Acres, and includes the Districts of Dollymount, Clontarf, The Crescent, Fairview, Ballybough, Richmond, Drumcondra, Jones's-road, Clontarf, and all the outlying District of St. George's Parish, and Grangegeena, with a population of 7,814 persons—3,439 Males and 4,375 Females; living in 1,343 Houses.

The Boundary of the southern and more extensive District commences at the Liffey, where the western extremity of the Townland of Inchicore North leaves the River below Chapelizod, and, with the exception of the Townland of Bachelerscross, includes the whole of the extra municipal extent of the Parish of St. James's passing along the southern Townland Boundaries of Inchicore South and Golden Bridge South, where it crosses the Canal at Blackhorse Bridge; shortly afterwards it turns eastward, including the Townlands of Golden Bridge, North and South, Kilmasham, and the Village of Island Bridge to Dolphin's Barn, where it crosses the great southern road at Grovesfield Villa, and proceeds southward by the Dark Lane to Rathland West in the Parish of St. Catherine's, and along its western boundary to the Townland of Teggusfield, in the Parish of Crumlin, including the Townlands of Rathland East, Hazel's Cross, and Mount Jerome, all in St. Catherine's Parish; thence to the Flour mill on the city watercourse at Kinnage, and from there to the junction of Harold's Cross West Townland with that of Tremore, in the Parish of Rathfarnham, Barony of Rathdown, in which latter there is a large outlying population, chiefly in the neighbourhood of Roundtown. In this District are, also included the Townlands of Argus, in St. Catherine's, and part of Cherry Orchard, in the Parish of St. Nicholas of 12·02 per cent. during the last ten years. These numbers do not include the men of the Army and Navy serving in Ireland on the night of the 7th of April, but include the wives and families of such persons, and also soldiers on furlough.

The following is the Provincial Summary of the three last enumerations:—

The present decrease is most apparent in the City of Kilkenny and Town of Galway, and the Counties of Tipperary, Clare, Meath, Kilkenny, King's, Wexford, Waterford, and Cork. The only localities in which an increase of population has taken place are Dublin County (now divided into its own proper civic and rural district and the suburban circle of population round the metropolis), and the Towns of Carrickfergus and Belfast, in which latter locality it amounts to 18,941, or 18·88 per cent. on the returns for 1851.

From the Returns of the Emigration Commissioners, we learn that of the 2,249,855

Without, lying beyond the City Boundary. Following the margin of Tereure Towland, the Boundary meets the Kinnage-road, by which it runs to where that highway meets the Templeogue road, and passing through the head of the Dodder below that point, that watercourse forms its boundary to Mowdown, where the River becomes the Boundary of Rathgar Towland, and it meets the south-western point of the Rathmines Township, at the Towland of Rathmines South. This district includes the populous suburbs of Ransdown and Rathgar, without the Rathmines Township. The whole of this south-western suburb, which is distinct and separate from the Township of Rathmines, covers an area of 3,125 acres, and is occupied by a population of 8,829 persons, inhabiting 1,448 houses.

The Township of Rathmines, defined by the Act 10 & 11 Vic., cap. 263, extends southward from the Grand Canal boundary of the City, between Clarendon Bridge and Rortace Bridge at Leeson-street, to the River Dodder at Rathgar; it is margined externally on the West by the Townlands of Cherry Orchard, Harold's-cross (part of), Mount Jeremo, Rathland East, Argos, Tonguefield, Larkfield, and Kinnage, where its boundary turns to the north-east along the adjoining Towland of Tereure to near the top of Kinnage-road. It then passes south-eastward to Salem House, between the Townlands of Rathgar and Rathmines West; and proceeds in a southerly direction to the Dodder, between the Townlands of Rathgar and Rathmines South—passing eastward along the river to near the Old Cloth Mill; it then takes a northern direction to the Bloody Fields—first between its own Towland of Rathmines South and the adjoining Towland of Milltown, and then eastward between the Townlands of Collinstown and Milltown, and follows the margin of Collinstown, Ransdown South, Bagginath West, and Ransdown North, to Leeson-street Bridge, within its own Township and the adjoining Townlands of Dorneybrook West, Sollymount, Forty-acres, and Bagginath East. This large District, containing the Towland of Portobello (part of), Harold's-cross East and West, Rathmines East, West, and South, Collinstown, Ransdown South and North (part of), and Bagginath West, all situated in the easterly portion of the parish of St. Peter's and Bury of Uppercross, contains 1,690 acres, 1,908 houses, and had on the night of the 7th April a population of 12,874 persons.

The south-eastern Suburb of the City is all that portion lying between the eastern margin of Rathmines Township and the Sea,—bounded on the South by a Towland line, which, starting from the Old Cloth Mill at the junction of the Townlands of Milltown, Rathmines Great and Rathmines South, follows the course of the Dodder to the margin of Clonsilla Towland, where it becomes continuous with the Boreagh Boundary; and opposite Boreagh Cottage, it leaves the southern side of the River to enclose a portion of the Towland of Reekish within the Boreagh Boundary; thence passing between Smeatoncourt without and Smeatoncourt within, it still follows the Boreagh Boundary, and proceeding between the Townlands of Merrion and of Triallstown and Priesthouse at the junction of the Parishes of Dorneybrook and Booterstown, the remainder of the District is defined by a line which joins the sea-coast between Merrion and Booterstown. Within it are included the Townlands of Bagginath East and North, in the Parish of St. Peter's, extending from Upper Leeson-street to the Dublin and Kingsdown Railway; also Forty-acres, Sollymount, Dorneybrook West and East, and Clonsilla, in the Parish of Dorneybrook, and (with the exception of Sollymount) all in the Bury of Dublin,—also the localities designated South Lotts, adjoining the Grand Canal docks, in the Parish of St. Mark's; also Bagginath, Bagginath, Sandymount, Ballsbridge, Bagginath, Smeatoncourt, and Merrion, in the Parish of Dorneybrook, to the boundary of the last-mentioned Towland, at the point mentioned, and nearly opposite Dollymount on the northern shore of Dublin bay. This District likewise includes Manilla-parade, Upper Bagginath-street, and Pen-broke-road and place. It is occupied by a population of 16,714 persons, inhabiting 2,346 houses, spread over an area of 1,587 acres.

The entire population of the Suburban District of Dublin on the night of the 7th April, 1861, was 46,331, the sexes being 19,133 males, and 27,099 females; the numbers being on the north, 7,814 persons, and on the south, 38,417. The number of houses in process of building was—on the north 8, and on the south 115. The increase of the population of the County of Dublin from 146,778 in 1851, to 162,289 in 1861 is partly owing to a migration from the City into the Suburban Districts.

emigrants who sailed from ports in the United Kingdom, between the 31st of March, 1851, and the 8th of April last, 1,320,986 were Irish; and from the Returns obtained by the Registrar-General for Ireland, through the Consular agents at Irish ports, during the like period, we perceive that as many as 1,174,179 persons were set down as permanent emigrants. To this emigration may chiefly be attributed the decrease of the population, during a period when the country was remarkably free from any outbreak of famine, pestilence, or of the other social calamities which have occasionally retarded the growth of population in this and other countries. It must also be remembered that the effects of the disastrous period of famine and pestilence, which commenced with the potato blight of 1846-47, had extended over the first few years of the decade upon which it is now our province to report; and that there were no less than 250,811 paupers in the Irish workhouses and 47,019 persons in hospital, of whom 4,545 were not workhouse inmates at the time of taking the Census in 1851, while there were but 50,570 persons in the Irish workhouses the day before the recent Census was taken.

Table II. shows the result of the inquiry into the Religious Profession of the population. This is the first occasion on which this subject has formed a portion of the decennial Census; and when we state that in only fifteen instances have complaints, or objections to the Enumerators' Returns, been made to the Commissioners, the fact is to a certain extent a proof of the probable veracity of those Returns, as well as of the willingness of the people and the Clergy of all denominations to afford the utmost facility for arriving at the truth. In every instance in which a question arose as to religion, we caused the Enumerator to make a personal inquiry of the individual concerned.

The following is the Provincial Summary, arranged numerically, of the results of this portion of the inquiry, the particulars of which for each individual persuasion are set forth in the Table at pages 10 and 11:—

PROVINCES.	RELIGIOUS PROFESSION.
	Roman Catholic.	Established Church.	Protestant Dissenters.	All other Persuasions.	Jews.
Leinster, . . .	1,346,303	171,234	19,882	1,004	200
Munster, . . .	1,416,171	76,092	9,398	578	1
Ulster, . . .	903,687	330,130	531,006	5,442	34
Connaught, . .	804,473	40,000	6,031	340	1
Total, . . .	4,490,583	678,661	586,563	8,414	322

From this Table we learn that on the night of the 7th of April, 1861, those of the Roman Catholic Church amounted to 4,490,583; those of the Established Church to 678,661; and Protestant Dissenters, to 586,563—amongst whom those of the Presbyterian Church numbered 528,992, Methodists 44,532, Independents 5,062, Baptists 4,165, and the Society of Friends 3,812.

Those classed under the head of "all other persuasions," amounting to 8,414, were chiefly persons denominating themselves "Protestant Dissenters" (unspecified), "Reformed Presbyterians," "Separatists," "Christian Brethren," "Christians," "Covenanters," "Unitarians," "Seceders," also members of the Moravian Church, and such travellers, temporary lodgers, and mendicants (presumed to be Christian), as to whom the Enumerators, or the persons who filled the Householders' Schedules, were unable to obtain the necessary information. The detailed particulars respecting the class enumerated under this head will be given at a future period. The number of Jews was 322.

Table III. presents the Number of Houses Inhabited, Uninhabited, and Building in 1841, 1851, and 1861, with the decennial increase or decrease between the two latter periods. The number by which the inhabited houses had decreased for the ten years ending 31st March, 1851, was 282,616, or 21·27 per cent. less than those recorded on the 6th June, 1841; while by the present inquiry we learn that the number of inhabited houses is 938,238, and the decrease since 1851 is only 52,990, or 5·08 per cent. The number of uninhabited houses in 1851 was 65,263, while in 1861 an examination of the same item shows but 39,972. In 1841 there were 3,313 houses in process of building, in 1851 only 1,868, and in 1861, 3,047. Taking the inhabited houses in 1841, there were 1·11 families to each house; in 1851, 1·15 families; and in 1861, 1·14. The localities in which the house accommodation has decreased most are the Counties of Tipperary, Kilkenny, Meath, King's, and Queen's, in which also the population has very largely decreased;—while there has been an increase of inhabited houses in the Towns of Belfast and Carrickfergus, the County of Dublin (chiefly in the suburban districts of the metropolis), the Cities of Cork, Dublin, Waterford, and Limerick, and the Counties of Antrim, Armagh, Londonderry, and Sligo.

Table IV. exhibits the Number of Families in each Province, County, City, and certain large Corporate Towns in Ireland, in the years 1841, 1851, and 1861, with the decennial decrease between 1841 and 1851, and between the latter period and the date at which the present Census was taken. The decrease in the number of families between 1841 and 1851 was 268,468, or 18·23 per cent.; in 1861 the number of families returned by the Enumerators is 1,129,918, showing a decrease of 75,101, or 6·24 per cent. on the returns made for 1851. This decrease is most apparent in the Counties of Limerick, Queen's, Tipperary, Kilkenny, King's, and Clare. It has been least in the Province of Ulster, where it only amounts to 2,017, or 0·53 per cent. An increase in the number of families has taken place in the Towns of Belfast and Carrickfergus, the City of Dublin, and the Counties of Dublin, Antrim, Armagh, Londonderry, and Sligo.

The average number of persons to a family was 5·54 in the year 1841, in 1851 it was 5·44, and in 1861 it is 5·10. In the Metropolitan City, while the population has decreased by 8,686 persons, the Number of Inhabited Houses has increased by 514, and the proportion of persons constituting a family has, in proportion, decreased from 4·51 in the former to 4·26 in the latter period. In the town of Belfast, the average number of persons to a family is 4·79, and in the rural district of Donegal, 5·81.

Table V. shows the Number of Inhabitants in each Parliamentary Borough in 1851 and 1861, with the increase or decrease between these periods.

Table VI. affords the Religious Profession in each of the Thirty-three Boroughs.

Tables VII. and VIII. present in detail the number of the Houses and Families in each Parliamentary Borough.

Table IX. exhibits the Population and Religious Profession in each Town in Ireland, containing 1,500 Inhabitants and upwards.

When all the original returns shall have been minutely examined in this office, and the information which they contain carefully extracted, the figures in the following tables will no doubt be altered to a certain extent, but we have reason to suppose that such revision will not materially affect the general results.

In our General Report we shall have the honour to lay before your Excellency the details of each of the subjects contained in this Abstract, as also of the Ages, Education, Occupation, Marriage-Condition, and Vital Statistics afforded by the Returns obtained on and after the 8th of April, in the present year.
